PARKING GALORE . . . Ample parking, spaces for 200 cars, allows customers of the new Jim Dandy Market at Crenshaw and Torrance Blvds., to park within "a penny's pitch" of the market entrance. Customers may roll one of the 200 service carts directly to their cars, thus eliminating the need for walking long distances with arms loaded with awkward bundles. Special prices are featured in all departments during the new super market's Grand Opening event this week-end. The special prices will continue throughout the week. The chain of stores has a policy of running Thursday-to-Thursday specials allowing housewives to shop on the less busy days and still take advantage of money-saving specials.

IT'S DONE WITH MIRRORS . . . Clever placement of large plate glass mirrors allows customers to spot instantly the many choice fruit and vegetable items displayed in the new vegetable section at Jim Dandy Market. Manager of the section, Eddie Alterman, restocks the display cases each morning with garden fresh produce. Wide aisles throughout the new modern market make shopping a pleasure.

YOUR CHOICE . . . Butcher Charlie Holman allows Florence Fern to choose the side of beef she desires to have cut and packaged for deep-freeze storage. Whether a full side or just a quarter, the butchers at the new Jim Dandy Market will cut and wrap meat to each customer's specification for frozen-food lockers—and at no extra cost.

Opening Sale Starts Today At Jim Dandy

The new modern Jim Dandy Market can best be described as the huge enterprise with a family touch.

Celebrating the grand opening this week-end are the management and staff of 50 clerks of the new super market, which is located at Crenshaw and Torrance Blvds.

The huge one-stop-shopping center is a giant in the field of convenient shopping.

Wide aisles, free of space-consuming stockpiles, and modern lighting make shopping in the new Jim Dandy just "Jim Dandy."

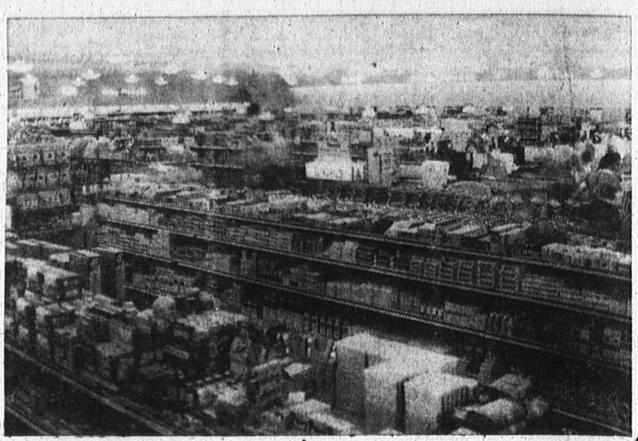

New Super Mart Open Seven Days

It is a seven-day operation at the new Jim Dandy market, which is observing its grand opening this week-end.

The store opens at 9 a.m. and closes at 10 p.m., seven days per week.

More than 50 clerks, a majority of whom live in Torrance and who were hired because they do live here, are retained to serve the needs of the busy shopper.

Besides the thousands and thousands of common household items always offered at money-saving prices are savory foods for those with an "international" taste, according to Hank ITEMS BY THE THOUSANDS . . . Merchandise offered at thrifty prices at the modern Jim Dandy Market runs from imported snails (including separate shells) to common salt. A selection of more than 100 toy items is displayed as well as many shelves of sundry items including toothpaste, dishes, cosmetics, fly swatters and thousands other products. Kids are welcome in the store and the management has provided more than 50 carts equipped with jump seats for the smaller tots.

Veltmann manager. Displayed are Mexican foods ready to heat and eat, Chinese dinners, Italian bills of fare, a line of Kosher products, and hundreds of imported special items.

A wide choice of meat as well as fresh and frozen poultry and fish is available at the meat counter. Manager Charles Holman will cut, package and identify meat for customers with home freezers. There is no extra charge for this service, even though the meat is offered at specially reduced prices to those buying a quarter or side of beef. Any accredited organization is given a 10 per cent discount on meat as well as other items purchased at the new Jim Dandy Market. All meat is "aged" by Manager Holman to bring out the tender goodness in each cut.

Always available at the meat counter are two selections of meat—commercial and good.

A staff of 12 butchers is maintained to offer "personal service" to local shoppers.

Lining the shelves of the liquor department managed by Johnny Blair are the choicest brands of liquors, wines and mixers. A wide variety of beers is carried in the refrigeration cases in the liquor department.

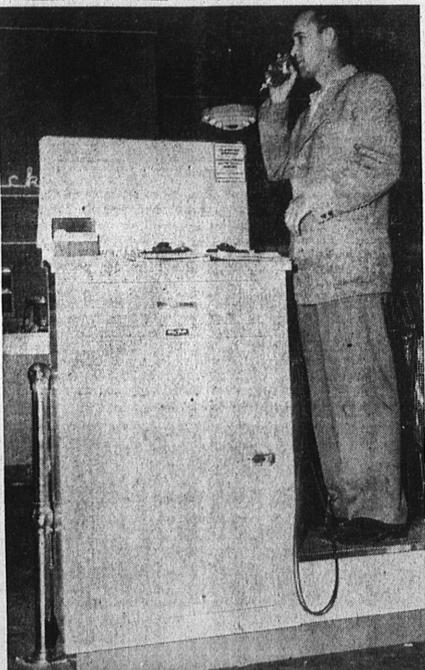

Cigars, cigarettes, magazines, fancy drinking glasses are also sold in Blair's department.

Fresh, made-on-the-spot doughnuts are sold at the snack bar just inside the main entrance. Featured are hot Chicago pastрами sandwiches on Russian rye bread.

Featured in the Fancy Foods section are such foods as crepe suzettes, stuffed oranges, mangoes, Mexican pumpkin seeds, pheasant, quail, and many other items.

A special section is devoted to dietetic foods.

Still another section is devoted to prepared delicatessen foods. Tasty salads and cooked meats of all kinds are cooked in a special kitchen right in the mar-

NERVE CENTER . . . From this elevated control dock Manager Hank Veltmann can watch the traffic at all eight check stands calling for additional cashiers or packing boys as they are needed to expedite the checking-out process. A loud speaker system allows him to call for extra help or more merchandise. Shoppers who wish to cash checks are invited to come to this control station for OKs. Once the check is approved it will be accepted at any of the eight checking stands without further delay.

It Runs in the Veltmann Family

Managing Jim Dandy Markets runs in the Veltmann family.

In fact, the manager of the Redondo Beach Jim Dandy market looks a great deal like the manager of the Torrance store. And for good reason.

They are twins.

The new manager of the local store at Crenshaw and Torrance Blvds is Hank Veltmann. His brother, Jack, manages the Redondo store on Pacific Coast Highway.
